The Sleep of Reason Produces Monsters

The place became full of a watchful intentness now; for when other things sank brooding to sleep the heath
appeared slowly to awake
and listen.

Don't let the glasses fool you
Stand beside
Me when you measure my size
Don't let false estimations
rule you

To realize
I've been a wizard since
my childhood
And I've earned some respect for my art.

Under the direction of Mr. R. Aubuchon, and with the incredible help of the production crew, the cast of M.A.S.H. was able to stage a most lively and entertaining play this year. The play was a success, for all involved, and it is only appropriate to offer congratulations and thanks to everyone who helped put together a fantastic show.

The Owl and the Pussy-cat

The Owl and the Pussy-cat went to sea
In a beautiful pea-green boat;
They took some honey, and plenty of money
Wrapped up in a five-pound note.
The Owl looked up to the stars above,
And sang to a small guitar,
"O lovely Pussy, O Pussy, my love,
What a beautiful Pussy you are,
You are, you are,
What a beautiful Pussy you are!"

"Dear Pig, are you willing to sell for one shilling
Your ring?" Said the Piggy, "I will."
So they took it away, and were married next day
By the turkey who lives on the hill.
They dined on mince and slices of quince,
Which they ate with a runcible spoon;
And hand in hand, on the edge of the sand,
They danced by the light of the moon,
The moon, the moon,
They danced by the light of the moon.

Pussy said to the Owl, "You elegant fowl;
How charmingly sweet you sing!
Oh! let us be married; too long we have tanned -
But what shall we do for a ring?"
They sailed away for a year and a day,
To the land where the bong-tree grows;
And there in a wood, a piggy-wig stood,
With a ring at the end of his nose,
His nose, his nose,
With a ring at the end of his nose.

I saw a man pursuing the horizon;
Round and Round they sped.

I was disturbed at this;
I accosted the man.

"It is futile," I said,
"You can never —"

"You lie," he cried,
And ran on.

The frogs and the serpents each had a football team,
and I heard their cheerleaders in my dream:

"Bilgewater, bilgewater," called the frog,

"Bilgewater, bilgewater,

"Sis, boom, bog!"

"Roll 'em off the log,

Slog 'em in the sog,

Swamp 'em, swamp 'em,

Muck, mire, quash!"

"Sisyphus, Sisyphus," hissed the snake,

"Sibilant, syllabub,

Syllable-loo-ba-lay.

Sumac, asphodel,

Yankee Doodle came to London
Riding on a pony;
Stuck a feather in his cap
And called it macaroni ...

(later, American version)

Seth's mother went to Lynn
To buy a pair of britches;
The first time Nathan put them on
He tore out all the stitches ...

(original British version)

Legend has it that the original "Yankee Doodle" was written by a British Army surgeon to ridicule the countrified American colonists fighting in the French and Indian wars. During the revolution the song was taken from its creators and turned against them.

*I have endured a great deal of ridicule without much malice; and have recieved
a great deal of kindness, not quite free from ridicule. I am used to it.*

Abraham Lincoln

These clipper ships of the early 1850's were built of wood in shipyards from Rockland in Maine to Baltimore. These architects, like poets who transmute nature's message into song, obeyed what wind and wave had taught them, to create the noblest of all sailing vessels, and the most beautiful creations of man in America. With no extraneous ornament except a figure-head, a bit of carving and a few lines of gold leaf, their one purpose of speed over the great ocean routes was achieved by perfect balance of spars and sails to the curving lines of the smooth black hull; and this harmony of mass, form and color was practiced to the music of dancing waves and of brave winds whistling in the rigging. These were our Gothic cathedrals, our Parthenon; but monuments carved from snow. For a few brief years they flashed their splendor around the world, then disappeared with the finality of the wild pigeon.

--Samuel Eliot Morison

The story of Norwell is, in many respects, the story of the North River, for this artery of commerce did far more to unify the area on its banks than any artificial boundaries could overcome. Ships built in the dozen or so North River yards called at every important port in the world. These vessels seldom were referred to as having been built in Scituate, Marshfield, Hanover, or Pembroke, but rather "North River". Many North River ships sailed with whaling fleets out of Nantucket and New Bedford, and many famous schooners used in the coasting trade originated here. Perhaps the most famous North River ship was the "Columbia" built at Hobart's landing (off Neal Gate St.). This vessel carried the discoverers of the Columbia River, Oregon and became the first American ship to circumnavigate the globe.

If Longfellow's "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere" Were Written by Ernest Lawrence Thayer,
Author of "Casey at the Bat"

It looked extremely rocky for the colonists that night;
The British were attacking with no hope of help in sight;
So, with villages in danger from the enemy so near,
They had to send a warning, and they called on Paul Revere.

There was ease in Paul's demeanor as he climbed upon his mare;
There was pride in Paul's expression as he sat so tall and fair;
And then the horse grew skittish, and gave a sudden jump,
And Paul fell from his saddle, landing smack upon his rump.

With a smile of Yankee courage, Paul rose smartly to his feet,
And once again upon the saddled mare he took his seat;
But as he gripped the reins, she made a sudden turn around,
And once again Paul plummeted onto the dusty ground.

The smile has vanished from Paul's face, his eyes burn with a glare;
He grips the bridle fiercely as again he mounts the mare;
And now he tells the horse to gallop, in an urgent tone,
And now the air is shattered as the horse takes off--alone;

Oh, somewhere in this war-torn land the people safely know
That Redcoats are invading, taking captives as they go;
And somewhere people are prepared to flee the British force,
But there's no hope for New England--

Paul Revere can't ride a horse.
